1. A short message from the president

It is without any doubt not very original to talk – once more! – about the pandemic. Yet, unfortunately, the pandemic was also in 2021 of overwhelming presence in our lives. It impacted societies and had its effects on professional associations like ours. This long-lasting situation truly exhausted many of us and reduced our ability to engage in voluntary work related to the SAGS or other professional associations. This makes me feel even more grateful and appreciative to my SAGS colleagues: In 2021, they made our association run by organising manifold activities and participating in stimulating debates. Under these strenuous conditions, we – as I would argue – successfully consolidated the structures and activities we had initiated long before.

Our publication series “Gender Issues,” which we have been hosting since the beginning of 2020, published its first book in 2021. But it doesn’t stop here: Four more books are already in the pipeline. The selection process for the Brigitte Schnegg Prize, for which we received many excellent applications, demonstrated that gender studies are more vivid and dynamic than ever. A new generation of young scholars is pushing gender studies further in new and original theoretical ways by bringing up empirically highly insightful and critical work demonstrating the significance of gender and sexuality in our societies. The organizers of our bi-annual conference on Women’s suffrage and democracy today: Critique, memory, visions which took place in November at the University of Zurich, insisted on an ‘on-site-only’ event: Even though this implicated a complex setting (and a lot of work), it proved to be the perfect move during this pandemic: Direct encounters and interactions were not only highly appreciated by the participants, but they allowed intellectual exchanges and an atmosphere which many of us had been missing lately. Finally, our members’ assembly in November was attended by 24 people (14 online and 10 onsite), a clear sign of the continuing importance of the work our association is doing. In this sense, it seems to me that this year calls for nothing less than an extraordinary thank you to all our members, especially the board members, who have found the energy and intellectual stamina to engage in all these activities.

Where shall we be heading next year or in the years to come? With Dominique Grisard, the new SAGS Vice-President, we have introduced a new and more precise division of tasks within the SAGS presidency. The aim is to make time to launch new activities, develop visions together with our board, and tackle issues in the realm of gender and sexuality that are of utmost importance but which we have not yet had time to address. There are, of course, many issues ‘on the menu,’ and we will not be able to tackle all of them in 2022. But I would like to mention just two that I think are crucial challenges: First, we are currently observing a considerable increase in the number of students in gender studies, at the Master’s level but even more so at the Ph.D. level. While this is good news, we realise that we do not have the resources within Swiss universities to support and supervise all these Master’s and Ph.D. students. We will work to alleviate this problem because, of course, the anchoring of gender studies in Swiss universities is one of the main goals of the SAGS – an ambitious and complex one. Second, there is currently a lot of discussion about the precarious working conditions in Swiss universities, a precarity (and inequality) that mainly lies on the shoulders of early-career academics. Many aspects of this problem are gendered (among others), and it is time for the SAGS to get more involved in these debates.

I want to end this introduction with two quotes from "Feminist theory from margin to center" (1984), written by bell hooks, who died in 2021 (1952-2021). bell hooks has been of paramount importance in my intellectual and feminist trajectory, as she has been for many of us.

"When women actively struggle in a truly supportive way to understand our differences, to change misguided, distorted perspectives, we lay the foundation for the experience of political solidarity. Solidarity is not the same as support. To experience solidarity, we must have a community of interests, shared beliefs and goals around which to unite, to build Sisterhood. Support can be occasional. It can be given and just as easily withdrawn. Solidarity requires sustained, ongoing commitment. In feminist movement, there is need for diversity, disagreement, and difference if we are to grow" (p.64).

"To build a mass-based feminist movement, we need to have a liberatory ideology that can be shared with everyone. That revolutionary ideology can be created only if the experiences of people on the margin who suffer sexist oppression and other forms of group oppression are understood, addressed, and incorporated. They must participate in feminist movement as makers of theory and as leaders of action. In past feminist practice, we have been satisfied with relying on self-appointed individuals, some of whom are more concerned about exercising authority and power than with communicating with people from various backgrounds and political perspectives. Such individuals do not choose to learn about collective female experience, but impose their own ideas and values. Leaders are needed, and should be individuals who acknowledge their relationship to the group and who are accountable to it. They should have the ability to show love and compassion, show this love through their actions, and be able to engage in successful dialogue" (p.173).

RIP bell hooks.

Janine Dahinden, January 2022, president of the SAGS

2. Board and Membership of the SAGS

2.1. Board, members and redefinition of the tasks of the presidency

By the end of 2021, the fifteen board members represented seven Swiss universities, two language regions, and a wide range of disciplines and positions. The board met three times in 2021.

With thirty new members joining and twenty members leaving in 2021, the SAGS counted exactly 300 members on December 31, 2021. This represents an increase of 10 members compared to 2020.

There have been two changes in the board of the SAGS. First, Hélène Martin left the board at the beginning of the year and was replaced by Anne Lavanchy. Second, given her engagement in the Think Tank Gender and Diversity, Nathalie Amstutz decided to leave the vice presidency, which Dominique Grisard then took over. (Dominique Grisard will nevertheless stand for election at the 2022 members' assembly). We want to express our warmest thanks to Nathalie for the fantastic work she has done, the excellent spirit she has brought, and for her committed engagement. Nathalie Amstutz continues as a member of the board.

This change has allowed us to fundamentally rethink the division of tasks between the president and the vice president:

Dominique Grisard will take over the responsibility as chair and coordinator of the "Gender Issues" editorial board as of 1.01.2022. She will also chair the jury of the Brigitte Schnegg Prize.

Janine Dahinden will continue to take care of all other tasks and focus on developing new activities and strategies within the SAGS.

The members' assembly was held on November 5 in a hybrid format, with 24 attendees (10 on-site and 14 online).

3. Scientific Activities

3.1. SAGS Publication Series "Gender Issues"

We are delighted that our book series "Gender Issues" – which we have taken over the editorial direction since January 2020 – is gaining momentum and dynamics.

The first book was published in 2021.

AG TransforMen, Baumgarten, D., Luterbach, M., Peitz, M., Rabhi-Sidler, S., Stiehler, S., Studer, T., Thym, A. and Zinn, I. (eds.) (2021) Zeitdiagnose Männlichkeiten Schweiz. Zürich und Genf: Seismo (Geschlechterfragen | Question de Genre | Gender Issues).

Available in open access at: <https://www.seismoverlag.ch/de/daten/zeitdiagnose-mannlichkeiten-schweiz>

Wandel und Persistenz der Geschlechterverhältnisse in Arbeitswelt, Familie und Politik bedeuten für Männer und Männlichkeit(en) spezifische Möglichkeiten und* Herausforderungen. Zur Debatte steht, was sich gegenwärtig überhaupt verändert. Welche Entwicklungen werden ausgemacht? Welche Potenziale, Widersprüche und Spannungen – für Männer und für die Gesellschaft – tun sich auf oder entstehen dadurch? Wie haben sich Männlichkeiten historisch in der Schweiz überhaupt gestaltet und ausgebildet?*

Das Buch bündelt Forschungsbeiträge zu Männlichkeit(en) in der Schweiz, die zu einer kritischen Zeitdiagnose beitragen. Dabei werden Perspektiven aus verschiedenen Disziplinen – der Geschlechterforschung, Soziologie, Sozialen Arbeit, Geschichte, Literaturwissenschaft, Psychologie und Migrationsforschung – eingebracht.

The Vernissage of the book Zeitdiagnose Männlichkeiten Schweiz took place on 18 November at the Labyrinth bookshop in Basel. Four of the editors presented the process of the book's development and gave their thoughts on the publication of the collection. Katrin Meyer, for the editorial committee of the Gender Issues series, and Franziska Dörig, from Seismo Publishers, welcomed the book's publication.

(© jonasgillmann.ch)

The book had some important media echo, being prominently featured in SRF Kultur on November 4, 2021: <https://www.srf.ch/kultur/gesellschaft-religion/sachbuch-ueber-maennlichkeit-was-heisst-mann-sein-in-der-schweiz>.

Four of the editors also presented the book on November 6 at BuchBasel. <https://www.buchbasel.ch/media/images/P5A3289.original.jpg>.

The next book will be published in early 2002 as the follow-up anthology to the 2019 Biennial Conference of the SAGS. Edited by Dominique Grisard, Annelise Erismann and Janine Dahinden, this volume entitled Violent Times, Rising Resistance – An Interdisciplinary Gender Perspective brings together contributions from 11 authors.

The publication of a third book is announced for 2022: Domesticités globalisées: Perspectives philippines by Julien Debonneville.

We are also delighted that four more books are expected to come out in the next two years.

On this occasion, we reiterate our encouragement to all early-career and established scholars working on gender or with a gender perspective, from the humanities or the social sciences, to submit their manuscript.

3.2. SAGS Conference 2021: Women's suffrage and democracy today: Critique, memory, visions

Since 2010, the SAGS has been organizing a conference every second year. Our 2021-conference took place on 26-27 November at the University of Zurich.

The conference sought to reflect and celebrate the Swiss women's right to vote introduced at the federal level in 1971. However, the conference covered more than just topics serving a historical re-contextualisation of women's suffrage in Switzerland. The suggested axes ("critique, memory and visions") aimed to offer a much broader intersectional perspective on the processes and practices of democracy in Switzerland and abroad. By questioning heteronormative and Eurocentric conceptions of citizenship, addressing issues of democratic justice in the workplace, developing reflections on digital democracy, and integrating philosophical, legal and historical approaches into its program, the conference panels and keynotes demonstrated that democracy today remains largely an "unfinished project".

A pandemic lull allowed the conference organizers to welcome over a hundred participants on site. Participants from Brazil, Egypt, Germany, Kenya, Turkey and Switzerland joined the two-day conference to discuss, critically approach and reflect on the topic of women's rights and democracy.

Eleven panels and 34 presentations were subdivided along the previously cited three different axes ("critique, memory, and visions.") The participants could enjoy the physical presence of three keynote speakers and attend a public round table.

Three keynotes on site

The keynote of Hoda Elsadda (Cairo) titled Feminist Lives: Contestation, Erasure and Dissonant Memories revolved around an Egyptian activist Duriyya Shafik, an outspoken advocate for women and human rights throughout the 40s and 50s.

In her keynote speech on Kenyan Feminism in the Digital Age, Nanjala Nyabola (Nairobi) spoke about feminist activities at the intersection of digital and analogue politics and shed light on their (post-)colonial context.

Finally, bringing the topic of women's rights and democracy back home, Andrea Maihofer (Basel) addressed the modern challenges of democracy, including the politics of memory and dealing with historical injustice, the rise of the right-wing populism, and the sharpening care-crisis.

ACT! Politik, Protest, Performance

The conference was consolidated by a roundtable titled "ACT! Politik, Protest, Performance," moderated by Kaspar Surber (Editorial board WOZ). The three participants, Michelle Akanji (co-director Theaterhaus Gessnerallee), Ezgi Akyol (head map-F, former AL municipal councilor), Tillie Kottman (hacktivist), approached the topic of democracy from the perspective of 'hacktivism', cultural production and parliamentary politics.

Meeting the SAGS over breakfast

On Saturday morning, the "Meet the SAGS" event brought about fifteen participants for a relaxed breakfast in the University cafeteria. After a short introduction, participants had the opportunity to exchange with colleagues working on similar issues in other institutions and cantons. For new members of the SSEG, the breakfast was an opportunity to meet some of the SSEG committee members and discuss their interests in gender issues in an informal and friendly setting.

3.3. Brigitte Schnegg Award 2021: The winners of the 3rd edition

The Brigitte-Schnegg-Prize was created in honour of Prof Dr. Brigitte Schnegg, the director of the Interdisciplinary Centre for Gender Studies at the University of Bern until her unexpected death in spring 2014. Brigitte Schnegg was an outstanding historian and gender scholar in Switzerland and an important promoter of young scholars in gender studies. On a more personal note, she was a dear colleague for many of us and we will all remember her for her open, positive and intelligent spirit and good humour. The purpose of this biannual award is to honour outstanding academic work in gender studies in Switzerland that contributes to social and political change.

The 2021 edition of the Brigitte Schnegg Prize was attributed to Dr. Faten Khazaei for her thesis Manufacturing Difference: Double Standard in Swiss Institutional Responses to Intimate Partner Violence.

Thanks to its innovative research approach, high scientific standard, reflexivity, and high societal and political relevance, Dr. Khazaei's doctoral thesis convinced the jury members. By presenting an empirical, multi-sited ethnographic case study on intimate partner violence – a topic of significant political relevance – this work adds nuanced knowledge to a debate that often remains highly generalized. The jury emphasized further that by including three different institutions that intervene in the treatment of IPV cases at various stages, this Ph.D. thesis succeeds in showing the overarching structural logic of racialization of sexism. Finally, the jury also emphasized reflexivity and positionality as methodological innovations of this thesis and indicators of excellence. This thesis is likely to become obligatory reading on the institutional treatment of IPV in Switzerland. Therefore, it consists of a valuable contribution to societal and political change, as we expect from every Brigitte Schnegg laureate.

An honourable mention was awarded to Dr. Leandra Bias for her thesis The (Im)Possibility of Feminist Critique in Authoritarianism: Revisiting Western Knowledge-Transfer in Russia & Serbia. The jury considered this Ph.D. thesis of particular political significance for transnational feminisms, especially given current developments in Russia and Serbia. Post-communist Europe is often forgotten in the scholarly debates about transnational feminisms and their power relations. Given the dangerous consequences of the current authoritarian anti-Western and anti-gender discourse for feminists in post-communist Russia and Serbia, tackling this theoretical – and inherently political – gap is long-overdue.

The Brigitte Schnegg prize winner and the honorary mention recipient were revealed on November 5th at the end of our annual general assembly. The ceremony included a very stimulating lecture by Dr. Faten Khazaei entitled Re-politicising intersectionality: In theory and practice.

Congratulations to the winners!

We would also like to thank this year's jury members for their commitment, namely:

- Nathalie Amstutz, Professor of Diversity Management, University of Applied Sciences Northwestern Switzerland - FHNW
- Lilian Fankhauser, Co-Head of the Gender Equality Office, University of Bern
- Andrea Maihofer, Professor Emeritus, Department of Social Sciences, University of Basel
- Katharina Pelzelmayer, FemWiss Representative and Research Associate, Swiss University of Applied Sciences Kalaidos
- Doris Wastl-Walter, Professor Emeritus, Institute of Geography, University of Bern
- Chair of the jury:
- Janine Dahinden, Professor of Transnational Studies, University of Neuchâtel
- Doris Wastl-Walter in the last round (following Janine Dahinden's withdrawal due to conflict of interest)

4. Outward Communication

In 2021, the SAGS PR Team, consisting of Fleur Weibel and Annelise Erismann, in close support of SAGS secretary Martine Schaer, has continued pursuing an external communication strategy focused on delivering a steady flow of information to establish a sustainable online presence. This year's communication evolved around publicizing the November conference to our targeted audiences in Switzerland. For instance, we had inserted an advertisement for the conference in the Magazine FemInfo months before it took place. This strategy seems to have been successful. As a result, we now count with 335 Bulletin subscribers (an increase of 8.8% compared to last year's figure), 558 Twitter followers (a rise of 39.2% compared to the previous figure), and 394 persons who like our page on Facebook (an impressive increase of 43.8% compared to the corresponding figure in 2020).

In our last board meeting, Fleur Weibel expressed her interest in stepping down from the PR team in 2022. She has been responsible for public relations of the SAGS since 2018, when the new website was designed and implemented. We thanked Fleur for all the work done so far and started looking for a person to take over the PR together with Annelise in 2022.

5. Cooperations, Networking & Anchoring of Gender Studies

5.1. Think Tank Gender & Diversity: New FORUM Activites – funded by Swissuniversities 2021-2024

The Think Tank Gender & Diversity pursues the goal of networking, developing, and promoting the vast knowledge and competencies created among higher education in the fields of gender and diversity in cooperation with the SGGF/SSEG and the GENDER CAMPUS. Some changes occurred with the start of the second phase of the Think Tank in January 2021, funded by swissuniversities: Andrea Maihofer (University of Basel) has withdrawn from the think tank presidency. The SGGF/SSEG and the current presidency, Nathalie Amstutz (FHNW), Christa Binswanger (Universität St. Gallen), Sabine Kradolfer (HES-SO) would like to thank her warmly for her stimulating, supportive and competent commitment. With the new project "Forum of Swiss Higher Education Institutions," the Think Tank reinforces its objective of transversality. The forum serves to network the 19 projects currently being carried out at Swiss universities from 2021 - 2024 as part of the swissuniversities P-7 programme "Diversity, Inclusion and Equity in Higher Education Development." Through topic-specific activities and collaborations, the forum supports Switzerland-wide knowledge building and transfer on diversity, understood as an intersectional interaction of inequality relations that can include gender, racialisation, sexuality, dis/ability, age, migration and class. These institutional exchanges also consider approaches to solutions resulting from the partner universities' different service areas and projects. In addition, scholars, diversity experts and researchers of various sub-fields of research on diversity, inclusion and equity in higher education are involved in these events, which count on the critical support of an advisory council.

5.2. RINGS

The RINGS (International Research Association of Institutions of Advanced Gender Studies) conference 2021 took place on October 25-26 online and in Budapest on the topic "Forging New Solidarities: Networks of (Academic) Activism and Precarity." It was organized by the Department of Gender Studies, CEU PU Vienna, TNT Gender Studies Research Group, University of Szeged and CEU Institute for Democracy, Budapest. As RINGS contact person for the SAGS, Anika Thym participated in the conference and had the opportunity to present our association. She also visited the general assembly, where country reports and short statements were presented from Austria, Check Republic, Finland, the Netherlands, Germany, Hungary, India, Italy, Romania, Russia, South Africa, Sweden, Switzerland, and Turkey (see conference website: <https://rings2021.wixsite.com/conference/program>).

Conference participants also received information on the EU project "Reducing gendered inequalities caused by the COVID-19 pandemic" (see <https://resistire-project.eu/>).

Furthermore, RINGS welcomes internship applications (sent to the Co-Chairpersons). Students currently not enrolled at universities and independent researchers may apply. Unfortunately, there is no remuneration for this position.

6. Working Groups

Working groups are at the core of the intellectual endeavour of the SAGS – a reason why the SAGS sent out a call for new working groups in 2021. Furthermore, we also scheduled a time slot for informal exchanges during the second day of our biannual conference. We purposefully sought to grant first-time conference attendees and SAGS long-term members an opportunity to meet over lunch to discuss future research collaborations and the possibility of liaising in thematic working groups to overcome institutional and regional anchors.

The SAGS supports the working groups financially by offering them visibility on its website, the possibility to communicate via its electronic newsletter Bulletin SSEG-SGGF, and the possibility to publish in the series "Gender Issues."

Proposals for thematic working groups can be sent at any time to info\(at\)genregeschlecht.chgenregeschlecht.ch).

6.1. Feminisms, Marxism and Decoloniality – FMD

We are delighted to inform you of the creation of a new Latin American working group named "Feminisms, Marxism and Decoloniality" (FMD). This working group is born ambitious in its geographical and thematic foci, aiming to institutionalise research in gender studies, feminisms, sexuality, decoloniality and Marxist currents developed within the South and Central American diasporas in Switzerland. This group also privileges interdisciplinary and intersectoral discussions that includes colleagues based in Latin America, Abya Yala, Patria Grande, as well as in Portugal and Spain. Its members understand it as a platform for exchanging critical perspectives and methodologies and building coalition between contemporary social movements and their revolutionary counterparts. We welcome this new working group and we wish you fruitful exchanges! The first meeting of this working group took place on February 3rd, 2022.

Annelise Erismann (annelise.erismann\(at\)unil.chunil.ch)) for the working group

6.2. Affects, Feelings and Emotions

Debates surrounding feelings, emotional labour, affects, and intimacy have been central to gender studies since their inception. In the working group "Affects, Feelings and Emotions," we discuss research at the intersection of gender, affect, feelings and emotions. Due to the pandemic, our meetings in 2021 took place online. In our spring meeting we discussed a chapter from the book "Anaesthetics of Existence: Essays on Experience at the Edge" from Cressida Heyes and related it to our personal situations in the pandemic. In our second meeting in fall 2021, we discussed how we want to continue as a group. Thus, for 2022 we hope to be able to intensify our theoretical exchange again. Our next meeting will take place in February 2022, via Zoom. Two members of our group will present their research. New members are always welcome.

Laura Perler (laura.perler\(at\)giub.unibe.chgiub.unibe.ch)) for the working group

6.3. Transformation of Masculinities (TransforMen)

The working group "Transformations of Masculinities (TransforMen)" is an interdisciplinary and cross-institutional research group, independent of location, conceived to strengthen critical studies on men and masculinities in Switzerland and make them more visible.

In 2021, the working group worked on the publication of the book Zeitdiagnose Männlichkeiten. We were pleased about the lively media and public interest (see 3.1).

Following the completion of its book project, the TransforMen group will devote the new year to in-depth discussions on conceptual and empirical developments in critical research on men and masculinity. Specifically, the AG TransforMen decided to continue in 2022 with a Reading Group and project presentations. The group will meet in 2022 partly online, partly in presence.

Interested persons are invited to join the group.

Matthias Luterbach (m.luterbach\(at\)unibas.chunibas.ch)) for the working group

7. Awards and honours

The following awards were granted to SAGS members in 2021:

- Dr. Stefanie Claudine Boulila (Lucerne University of Applied Sciences and Arts) received the Emma Goldman Award 2021.
- Prof. Dr. Jamie L. Gloor (University of St. Gallen) won the Academy of Management Best Paper Award from the Gender & Diversity in Organizations Division for her paper titled, "\(Don't\) Mind the Gap: Reframing Résumés Facilitates Mothers' Work Re-entry," coauthored with Ariella Kristal, Leonie Nicks, and Oliver Hauser.
- Lic. phil. Lovis Hoppmann won the CSLS Prize in Language and Social Justice from the University of Bern, Center for the Study of Language and Society (CSLS) – Article in Tages Anzeiger.
